Tea

China is considered as the birthplace of tea. It is believed that tea in South Asian countries including Nepal was introduced from China. Tea is one of the most popular beverages in China. Apart from refreshment, it has significant social and cultural role in China.

China is the world's largest tea market. It has remained top tea producer and exporter of tea for many years. The table below shows the export and import value of tea in China for last three years.

Year	Export (USD)	Import (USD)
2021	2.01 billion	167.5 million
2020	2.03 billion	180 million
2019	2.02 billion	187 million

Source: UN Comtrade

Export: As per the analysis of UN Comtrade 2020 data, China mostly exports green tea which consist of two third (67%) of its export, share of black tea export is around one third of its exports. Major tea export destinations are Hong Kong, Morocco, Vietnam, Myanmar and so on.

Import: As per the analysis of UN Comtrade 2020 data, China tea imports consist almost black tea which share is 90 percent of total tea import. China's major tea import partners are Sri Lanka, India, Vietnam, Kenya and so on.

Tea Cultivation

Majority of the China's tea cultivation areas are lying around South of the Yangtze River in Guizhou, Yunnan, Sichuan, and Hubei provinces.
